

Neuro-Oncologist

Kansas City

The University of Kansas Health System is seeking a medical oncology- or neurology-trained Neuro-Oncologist to join our comprehensive cancer care team made up of a multidisciplinary team of specialists who approach care and treatment of each patient and family as unique.

The University of Kansas Cancer Center is the region's only National Cancer Institute-designated cancer center where patients gain access to the most promising therapies, leading-edge clinical trials and world-class research. The University of Kansas Cancer Center is a world-class, community-based cancer research and care partnership spanning two states and involving collaboration among researchers, physicians and cancer support professionals. Our partnerships include cancer research and healthcare professionals associated with the the University of Kansas Medical Center, The University of Kansas Health System, University of Kansas in Lawrence, the Stowers Institute for Medical Research, Children's Mercy Hospital and the members of the Midwest Cancer Alliance.

Highlights

- NCI-Designated cancer center
- Brain Tumor Trials Collaborative (BTTC) association
- American College of Surgeons Commission on Cancer accreditation
- Collaborative interdisciplinary research programs and teams
- 10 faculty neurosurgeons, as well as dedicated neuro-radiation oncologists
- Advanced technology, including 14 linear accelerators and stereotactic radiosurgery
- Neuro-Oncology location in our new, state-of-the-art Cambridge Tower A
- Tremendous institutional, community and state support for this program

Qualified candidates will be

- Board-certified/eligible in neurology or medical oncology with fellowship in neuro-oncology.

For more information contact: Terri Houchen, physician recruiter at thouchen@kumc.edu

